Introduction

SCOPE

The collection of reference books available to users of the Main Reading Room of the Library of Congress contains 17,315 titles, primarily in the humanities, social sciences, and bibliography. Of these, more than 900 were published by the Library of Congress. Subject areas covered by the Library's specialized reading rooms, such as science and technology, music, law, area studies, and American local history and genealogy, are represented but not emphasized. Although some national bibliographies are available in the Main Reading Room, there are more extensive collections in the Descriptive and Shared Cataloging Divisions.

The 1980 subject catalog replaces the 1975 edition; this new edition contains entries for approximately 13,385 monographs and 3,930 serials which were in the Main Reading Room reference collection on August 15, 1980. In general, entries consist of author, short title, edition, place of publication, publisher, date of publication or beginning date for serials, paging, price, Dewey decimal number, card number, call number, and Main Reading Room location.

FILING ARRANGEMENT

Titles are entered alphabetically by subject heading and then by main entry. The subject headings are arranged word by word. A simple heading precedes its subdivisions or the same heading followed by qualifications or extensions of any kind. When the same word is used as the surname of a person, a place name, and the name of a thing, the subject entries are arranged in that order.

WASHINGTON, GEORGE, PRES. U.S., 1732–1799
WASHINGTON, D.C.
WASHINGTON MONUMENT, WASHINGTON, D.C.

Subdivisions employing dashes are arranged in the following order:
Chronological subdivisions arranged by date
Form and topical subdivisions arranged alphabetically
Geographical subdivisions arranged alphabetically

IDIOSYNCRASIES

A few peculiarities of this catalog should be explained. To save space, only the short title is printed. Whatever mark of punctuation appears at the end of the short title on the printed card appears in the subject catalog. The short title may end with a comma, a semicolon, a colon, or no punctuation. Since authors' birth and death dates are omitted, the author statement sometimes ends with a comma.

The abbreviation "mrr" before a card number means that there is no printed card for the work. Many of these titles are in the Loeb Classical Library series. Often the Library of Congress cataloged a slightly different edition, and cards were never printed for the edition in the Main Reading Room.

The symbols MRR Alc, MRR Ref Desk, MRR Biog, MRR Circ, and MRR Alc (Dk 33) indicate specific locations or collections of reference books in the Main Reading Room. For most of the collection, the symbol MRR Alc (Alcove) is used; MRR Ref Desk (Reference Desk) identifies the area where the reference librarians are located. A collection of biographical reference books is referred to as MRR Biog; MRR Circ (Circle) indicates the shelves near the issue or circulation desk in the center of the reading room. Deck 33 is a stack area adjacent to the reading room where various large library catalogs and congressional publications are kept.

Occasionally there is a blank line between the card number and the call number. The computer program calls for two blank spaces after the card number. Whenever there is not room for two blank spaces in the same line, a blank line results since the call number always begins a new line.

Although no attempt was made to indicate actual holdings of serials, a retention policy statement is included. "Latest edition" indicates that the Main Reading Room keeps only the latest edition received; superseded editions are returned to the general collections. "Latest edition*" means that the reading room should have the next-to-latest edition. "Partial set" indicates that the reading room has either the latest years of a serial or very incomplete holdings. "Full set" means that the reading room has all or almost all the volumes.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Special appreciation is due to the Automated Systems Office, which prepared the programs to sort and print the catalog and which supplies the technical assistance needed to add and delete titles and to correct the database. Serials which were not already in the MARC–S database and monographs which were not already in MARC were input by the Serial Record Division and the MARC Editorial Division. The General Reading Rooms Division is responsible for updating and correcting the database.

CONCLUSION

The Library hopes that this catalog will be a useful tool, especially for reference librarians. Any suggestions for improvement should be sent to the compiler in care of the General Reading Rooms Division, Research Services, Washington, D.C. 20540.
